

Fundamentals of De-Escalation and Crisis Intervention Seminar

Virtual Education
10 to 11:30 a.m.
Friday, May 20, 2022

This training provides concepts, tactics, and methods used in de-escalation and crisis intervention practices. Participants will be provided with theory and knowledge to apply in their individual real-world situations and crises. This includes learning skills to address the needs of people in crisis, personal safety considerations, and preserving the safety of bystanders. This training is beneficial for full-time, part-time, and seasonal staff.

Presenter Samantha Keasling

Samantha Keasling is a professor of criminal justice and law enforcement at Winona State University. Prior to her work in education, she served as a deputy sheriff in both Anoka and Fillmore counties in Minnesota. In her time as a police officer, Samantha served as a union negotiator and as hostage and crisis negotiator. She has devoted a large portion of her career to researching, learning, and teaching de-escalation and crisis negotiations skills.
